I love travelling, but I didn't like travelling ,before. In my first year of university, I started to travel during the holidays. During the new year's holidays I went to Paris, and during the summer vacation, I visited Athens and some cities in Italy – I was very happy because it was the first time I had travelled abroad with just my friends. I soon understood how important it was to travel.

On my travels I experienced new cultures through the art , history, language and food. I also had the chance to meet people who looked at life differently. Travelling is a learning experience for both oneself and also the people you meet. Some people I met during my travels had never heard of the attractions of Iran and it was great to share my information about Iran with them. When you travel you will meet people who have different cultural backgrounds and therefore , you will learn about other people's lives, such as traditions , dress , and food . This is how I understand that travel helps you understand home more. When you travel , you experience a different place , a different language and different way of living. All these make you understand your own home better. Not just the physical location of home , but also your way of life and your look on life. Travelling is truly a valuable experience and I am always interested in learning new things during my trips.

34-Where did he go during the New Year's holiday?

35-Did he travel abroad alone?

36-Why is travelling a valuable experience?

37-When you travel , you see that people are not different.                      A- True                      B-False

38-During the trips , he gave some information about his country's attractions to other people.

A-True

B-False
